

Finding the Heavier Coin

You have a pile of 9 quarters. All of the quarters weigh the same except for one of the quarters, which is heavier than the others.

You also have a balance scale (see the figure below), which can be used to compare the weights of two groups of quarters at a time.

Can you figure out which coin is the heavier coin by performing only two weighings?

